*Where are you?
Keep your eyes closed.*

*First, imagine the fresh morning dew under your feet...
You're barefoot, feeling every blade of grass; the sensation of the blades of grass prickling and tickling your feet.*

*And the aroma of flowers... Wild flowers.
Cornflowers and marigolds, aah... and carnations.*

*Are you sensing this?
Now, listen...
Birdsong... calls that are so pure and unspoilt; chords of love and joy;
sounds bestrewn with happiness.
You can see!
Although your eyes are still closed.*

*You see a meadow, a clearing amidst a forest. The sun is peeking from behind the trees.
It is rising, slowly, taking its time. Breathing, taking a deep breath of air to start a new day.*

*Hold your hand out in front of you. A little to the right. Don't be afraid...
They're blackberries... simply delicious! Pick one, see what it tastes like – it tastes different.*

It tastes of being carefree, of the summer, and of love.
